

[[VIDEO~LINK]] James Charles viral sex video in On Social

James Charles viral sex video in On Social

James Charles viral sex video in On Social

I come here for beauty news but all I see is this endless echo chamber of certain people being condemned to be perpetually wrong, no matter what, always. The last thread about this was repulsive and delusional and it's starting to become that again with all the "Well, it doesn't matter if it's fake, he WOULD say that, it SOUNDS like him!"

Why are we blaming people for things they didn't do, but totally maybe could possibly do the thing because it definitely sounds like something they absolutely for sure would do? Why can we not actually speculate things at a level of skepticism that's actually...sane? Why can we not hold people responsible for things they DID do instead of things they "sound like" they "would" do?